Excerpt from A Plea for the Poor: A Sermon Delivered in the Independent Tabernacle, in Philadelphia, on Sabbath Evening, the 18th December, 1814, for the Benefit of the Female Hospitable Society Debts contracted among this people, were released at the end of particular seasons: So that if we take all these items into account, we shall find, that they, contributed to the support of religion and the poor a sum amounting to almost half their income. Will any one assert that these laws are now abolished; and that the introduction of the christian system has superseded all the Jewish institutions? Let such persons remember, that so far is this from being true, especially to the extent now asserted, that the morality of Judaism, is more strongly-enforced in the gospel, particularly that part of it which relates to charity. If our Saviour hath left no definite instructions on this subject, he hath commanded (what is of much greater extent) thou shalt love thy neighbour. Thyself. Very justly did one observe, if under.
