C69664 2010 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)703881255 Subject: Pacific salmon -- Conservation -- Law and legislation -- United States. Excerpt: . . . and support the salmon abundance. The State of Alaska, as a regional stronghold, produces more than one-third of all Pacific salmon in North America. This legislation will protect these critically important wild salmon strongholds. By establishing a cooperative public private salmon stronghold partnership, this bill will break down the old barriers between Federal, State, and tribal governments, private landowners, and non-governmental organizations. It will streamline and coordinate our efforts toward a unified, clearly defined, science-based approach for conservation of salmon stronghold populations. And it will establish a much-needed grant and technical assistance program to leverage private dollars in support of targeted, high-impact projects in the stronghold watersheds. Establishing this kind of voluntary, incentive-based program will bring people together to accelerate the highest priority conservation actions needed to shore up our network of healthy salmon populations, serving as a buffer against our future losses among vulnerable stock. Restoring the threatened and endangered...
