BLOOD AND INTOXICATION: SPECIALIST CRIMES UNIT (BLOODIED LONDON) (VOLUME 3)DOWNLOAD

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 284 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.6in. April 1990: Dawn of the next Decade: With the new Specialist Crime Unit in its infancy and the attacks of the 1980s drifting into history and to the back of peoples minds, London is returning to a peaceful normality. The intelligence services working on the realisation that a new far right wing group of terrorists are rising in Europe prepare a conference in London to discuss next steps and to enhance working relationships. With senior police officers and agents continuing to disappear across the continent, leads and information seem confused and contradictory, the international function aimed at providing a clearer picture and set of common goals to combat the emerging threat. The young policeman, Robert Peterson and his now colleague, Jin-Lee, return to the streets of the capital with their new superior the rather brusque and impolitically correct, Inspector Larsen, demanding the new unit supply results far surpassing what is expected of the fledgling department. Working closely with the Metropolitan Police and intelligence services, SCU will provide support and facilitate investigations in a rather specialist area, gaining information from a community that the police were unable to penetrate in the past, facing a wall of suspicious silence on each previous attempt. But the darkness is rising once more, this time far more organised and adopting a different tactical approach, the sinister tentacles stretching out to strike terror once more. A comprehensive attack planned on the capital by the far right wing, their agents now seasoned professionals from around the world, the danger far greater than before as mercenaries are despatched to the streets of London. With MI6 and the Metropolitan Police charged with gaining results and fast, the small undercover investigation unit will once...
