Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Life and Achievements of Admiral Dewey: From Montpelier to Manila It is not by phenomena that great lives are made up. No careers of high utility are the consequences of accident. The wrecks of manhood and womanhood that strew the ways are logical results. Cause and effect always can be traced. There are not corn, clover and wheat fields except where the seed is sown. Apples and peaches, hickory nuts and walnuts grow on their respective trees, grapes on vines; and the farmer who fails to plow does not reap. Nations are characteristic as fruits and grains and men. We run the same race that our fathers have run, though all the stars that were over their courses are not the same that are ours, and the climes and soils are remote and different. There are superstitions that Washington and Lincoln were created for the particular destinies they fulfilled. They were representative, typical of the causes and the peoples they served wisely, because they were the embodiments of the conditions, and there was harmony in their creation and calling. Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Logan, Lee, the Johnsons, Longstreet, were stamped with Americanism. The luck of Grant was not drawn from a lottery. There was mathematics, not chance, behind it. Decatur, Perry, Rogers, Dewey have in their history the ineffaceable testimony of the north temperate zone of America as plainly as iron and gold are in our ores and become tempered steel and ringing coin when the furnaces glow and the hammers smite. Mutations of material are mechanical. Education from the principles that are primary to the products that are refined is the formative process of evolution. It is...
