The different effects on the six test bales of the various combinations of factors from October 14 to November 12, 1954, may be observed (see fig. These bales were exposed simultaneously to the same relative-humidity changes, yet the degree and rate of change among them differed, as is indicated by the slopes of the curves. Similarity in slopes of all the curves after November 12, as well as their similarity to the relative-humidity line, indicates that the moisture differential between the surface and the center of each bale was less than the difference between the surface moisture content and the equilibrium moisture content.
