Excerpt: . . . 11 ply chain and our recent accomplishments with regard to recovery planning. Recovery of the marine transportation system and resumption of commerce following a major incident, natural or manmade, that significantly impacts the MTS is an important component in supporting overall resiliency of the Nations supply chain. The Coast Guard has a broad, multifaceted jurisdictional authority and responsibility to ensure the safety and security of the Nations marine transportation system. As such, the Coast Guard is uniquely positioned to lead marine transportation system recovery efforts and, to date, has made significant progress toward improving the Nations preparedness posture in support of Department of Homeland Security strategic goals. The resumption of commerce requires the Coast Guard to coordinate with multiple Federal and State agencies to mitigate the impacts to the United States economy resulting from a significant marine transportation system disruption. Likewise, the private sector plays a critical role in marine transportation system recovery. Industry possesses both the best information on inbound and out-bound cargoes and day-to-day capabilities within the transportation mode to identify transportation and cargo-processing alternatives. These partnerships require prescribed communication procedures and pre-identified responsibilities to achieve the objective of restoring functionality to the damaged marine transportation system infrastructure. The Maritime Infrastructure Recovery Plan established a comprehensive approach to recovery from a transportation security incident. It provides a framework that clearly defines the roles for Government agencies, including the Coast Guard. The Maritime Infrastructure Recovery Plan also recognizes that . . .
