Modern humans were not there yet, but there were trees, insects and animals. Some of these animals were dinosaurs. The word dinosaur was given by a man who studied their kind. His name was Sir Robert Owen. He coined that word from two Greek words, deinos and sauros. Deinos means fearfully-great and sauros means lizard, which is why dinosaur originally meant fearfully-great lizard, but to simplify this, the dinosaur word meaning became terrible lizard. However, not all dinosaurs were terrible; neither were they lizards. Dinosaurs had different kinds. Some of them could be smaller than a dog, or some of them could be 2 to 3 times taller than a giraffe or wider than a killer whale. Some of them were plant-eaters, and some of them ate meat.
