

Omeros and Beloved through Wilson Harris's Cross-Cultural Imagination

By Hunte, Nicola

Book Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Narratives of Loss and Redemption | This text offers a contribution to the large body of work that is dedicated to unraveling the significant ideas of the Caribbean thinker, Wilson Harris. This study applies his notion of a cross-cultural imagination to a comparative discussion of the literary treatment of the trauma of New World colonialism and slavery in Derek Walcott's Omeros and Toni Morrison's Beloved. Concerned with the themes and tropes of loss and re-memberment, these narratives highlight Harris's focus on the flexible arcs and patterns of community that are possible within a cross-cultural awareness of human society's involvement with legacies of conquest. This reading uses the work of a Caribbean critical lens, with its acknowledgment of the heterogeneity of the Americas, to emphasize a redemptive poetics for the re-visioning of the postcolonial condition. The dialogue across Harris's, Morrison's and Walcott's work presents an alternative critical praxis for those interested in the development of Caribbean literary theory and of Caribbean and African-American literature in diaspora. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 404 gr | 220x150x15 mm | 292 pp.

READ ONLINE
[1.9 MB]

Reviews

This is basically the very best book i have read right up until now. It is definitely simplistic but excitement in the 50 % from the ebook. Your daily life period will likely be transform as soon as you total reading this article pdf.

-- Prof. Ambrose Pollich DDS

This is the greatest book we have read through till now. It is probably the most amazing book we have go through. I am just happy to tell you that here is the greatest book we have read through during my individual daily life and may be he best ebook for possibly.

-- Eliseo Leffler