They have not had agricultural experience?--I have not heard of any that had. It had not been ascertained then, when they passed through our hands. I could find out from the superintendent. 4516. The proportion you referred to is, that out of the 270 that you have had in your care, forty are considered suitable for settlement on the land in England?--Suitable to be retained for further training; they are definitely known as selected men, but their families have not been tested yet, they have not even all been reported upon. 4517. So that, roughly, about one in seven would lie the maximum of suitable persons?--That is the result of this first experience. Of course as the local committees get more practised in selection, and if they find another class of men who come to apply to them because they know that there is this chance of training, of course the proportion might be different. 4518. Do you think those 270 men are a fair sample of the whole body of the unemployed?--No, not of the whole body, because they have all been subject to preliminary inquiry as to then: industrial record. They are a fair sample of those whom the local committees recommend for work. Perhaps they are a little better than a fair sample. They were specially selected for this purpose. 4519. Do you think that your...
