SECTION I INTRODUCTION Object andJScope of Plan The object of this study has been to develop those basic principles and elements which make possible the establishment of uniform methods of cost accounting in shipbuilding. The plan recommended includes the important principles, definitions and elements of standardized cost methods which are applicable to any of the shipyards. To establish uniformity in cost accounting, it is essential that definiteness and standard methods be first established in the controlling items and divisions. These are of particular importance from the point of view of executives, who will be enabled currently to visualize production and operating conditions and to compare costs with standards in their own shipyards as well as with other shipyards. No attempt has been made to cover the numerous details and ramifications of accounting, timekeeping, storekeeping, forms, etc. Questions on such matters and details are either now covered or should be left to be developed in the individual shipyards. The important principles and elements for adequate cost-finding methods will serve as proper guides for the arrangement of the above and other necessary details. Advantages of Uniformity in Cost-Keeping In the preliminary statement on uniform cost methods for shipbuilders which was submitted on November 1, 1918, through the courtesy of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, there is included an outline of the needs and advantages of uniform cost methods in the shipbuilding industry. These benefits have been considered in the development of the principles and methods which...
