

Heavy Things (Paperback)

By J G Finch

T.N. Publishing, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .About Heavy Things J.G. Finch wrote Heavy Things while living in a small, closet-sized room in an old hotel in Pasadena. Most poems were written from J.G. Finch's real experiences and from him wandering the streets at night, taking it all in. In Heavy Things, Finch paints his emotions into words. From the eyes of a simple, poor black man living in America, Finch captures the subtle emotions of an average man who struggles with alcohol abuse, lack of money, and heartache. In several poems, Finch jostles with racism and writes about the idea of suicide and the limitations of love. He then surprisingly writes in an arrogantly confident way, as if waiting on the right moment to yell checkmate, before winning the game against an uninformed player: He is bitterness and too much cologne. A man masked in disguise. I despise his smell I hate his jealousy I hate his lies of manhood His stories of the military are always embellished. He speaks of football loudly to please his brothers. I do not believe him. I always stay far away from him....
