Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Illumination: Its Distribution and Measurement This book is intended to advance the subject of illuminating engineering or the art of directing and adapting light. It is divided into three parts. The first deals with the primary and the derived units of light, the theory of the distribution of illumination and the application of that theory to the spacing and the height of lamps. The second part describes instruments and methods employed for measuring light and illumination. The last part gives a few practical examples of the measurement of illumination. The art of illumination, wrote Count Rumford in the year 1789, although it is undoubtedly one of the most useful that has been invented by man, and contributes perhaps more than any other to his comfort and convenience in all countries and in every class of society, has not even been considered as an art; for the technical terms have not been invented which are indispensably necessary in order to render it possible to treat of it in a clear and satisfactory manner. One hundred and three years later, on May 10, 1892, a paper, of which the present volume is an expansion, was read before the Institution of Civil Engineers, was awarded a Telford Medal and a Telford Premium, and was published in volume ex. of the Proceedings of the Institution. The subject still continued to attract little attention, and after sixteen years, at the invitation of Mr. Leon Gaster, and with the permission of the Council of the Institution of Civil Engineers, the Paper was rewritten and appeared in The Illuminating Engineer. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic...
