Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Some 80 plus messages from a pre-season Ministerial Institute and the Session proper-over 400,000 words. THE thirtieth session of the Seventh-day Adventist General Conference was held at Battle Creek, Michigan over a four and one-half week period from January 27 through March 6, 1893. A Ministerial Institute occupied the first three weeks. This General Conference Session, with its special Ministerial Institute, was removed only five years from the controversial 1888 Session in Minneapolis. That earlier session was noteworthy for the strong emphasis on righteousness by faith by two of its presenters- A T. Jones and E. J. Waggoner. Their messages (unfortunately not recorded or published) were highly praised by the Lord's Messenger, Ellen G. White. Also unfortunately, there was stubborn resistance on the part of some leaders to that emphasis. The servant of the Lord made it clear that God wanted to, and had started to, pour out the Latter Rain upon His people. In 1896, three years after this present GC Session, Ellen White wrote that the light of the loud cry that...
