NEUROINFLAMMATION IN STROKE

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: Springer, Berlin | Stroke is a major cause of death and disability in industrialized countries. To date, the medical need of efficient therapy for this devastating cerebrovascular disorder remains unmet. During the last decades, the development of pharmacological stroke therapies was aimed at improving patient outcome by restoration of cerebral blood flow or protection from acute neuronal cell death. Almost all of The participants of the workshop VI Preface these approaches targeted the very early events...
