Next gentleman! said Andr Maggimore, one of the journeyman barbers in the extensive shaving saloon of Cutts and Stropmore, which was situated near the Plutonian temples of State Street, in the city of Boston. Next gentleman! repeated Andr, in tones as soft and feminine as those of a woman, when no one responded to his summons. My turn asked a spare young man of sixteen, throwing down the Post, with a languid air, and rising to his feet. Yes, sir, replied Andr, politely; and if the speaker had been out of sight, one would have supposed it was a lady who spoke. Have your hair cut No; shave. The barber seemed to be startled by the announcement, though there was not the faintest smile on his face to discourage the candidate for tonsorial honors. The young man looked important, threw his head back, pursed up his lips, and felt of his chin, on which there was not the slightest suspicion of a beard visible to the naked eye. Mr. Fitzherbert Wittleworth would not have been willing to acknowledge that he had not been shaved for three weeks; but no one could have discovered the fact without the aid of a powerful microscope. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
