NUCLEAR NONPROLIFERATION, BETTER INFORMATION NEEDED ON RESULTS OF NATIONAL NUCLEAR SECURITY ADMINISTRATIONS RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS: REPORT TO THE COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. (PAPERBACK)

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Nuclear proliferation is a national se-curity threat. DNN s two research and technology development programs de-velop technical solutions to prevent nuclear proliferation. From fiscal years 2012 through 2015, these programs obligated over $1.1 billion on 511 pro-jects. The DNN RD program obli-gated over $1 billion of this amount. A House report included a provision for GAO to review the programs. This report evaluates, among other objectives, (1) the extent to which projects managed by NNSA s research and technology development programs resulted in advanced, transitioned, or deployed nonproliferation technologies and (2) how NNSA measures the performance of its research and technology development programs and projects. GAO reviewed documents on a non-generalizable sample of 91 research and technology development projects, selected from all program areas to include projects with the largest amount of funding and to capture a broad range of the programs technical functions. GAO also reviewed DNN s program objectives and publicly reported performance measures and interviewed NNSA officials and technology users at other agencies.
