German Verbs

Verbs fall into 3 main classes. Each class represents something different. Inflectional class: based on whether the verb is strong or weak. Morphological class: based on whether the verb is strong or weak. Syntactical class: based on whether the verb is strong or weak.

Verb Classes

Verbs are divided into three main classes based on their inflection in the past tense (preterite) and the past participle (Partizip II). The past tense of strong verbs shows a vowel change in the stem, while weak verbs do not. The past participle of strong verbs ends in -en, while weak verbs end in -t or -n.
