Stenhouse Publishers. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Still Learning to Read: Teaching Students in Grades 3-6, Karen Szymusiak, Franki Sibberson, The saying goes that "children learn to read in grades K-2, and read to learn in grades 3 and up." Included are: Planning forms for whole class, small group and individual instruction; Assessment and conference strategies; Detailed descriptions of how to use readers' notebooks flexibly; Sample lessons for specific skills instruction; Annotated bibliographies of children's books to use in lesson design; Activities to extend and deepen read aloud and whole group conversations; Tips for designing lessons using nonfiction texts and student magazines; Ways to organize the classroom and library to promote student independence; Alternatives to levels for matching students, books and skills instruction. Are students in grades 3-6 still learning to...
