Excerpt: .video nihil res suos apud inimicus When he came to the administration of the government, he did not think so much of governing as of increasing his kingdom: wherefore he subdued the Scythians, till that time invincible, who had cut off Sopyrio, a general of Alexander the Great, and had slain Cyrus, king of the Persians, with two hundred thousand. Lysander, when he found by his scouts, that the Athenians were gone ashore to plunder, and that the ships were left almost empty, did not let slip the opportunity of doing his business, and so put an end to the whole war. While these things are doing, in Egypt, king Dejoratus comes to Demetrius, to entreat that he would not suffer the lesser Armenia, his kingdom, to be laid waste by Pharnaces. Among the ancient Romans some matron of approved and well known morals...
