Excerpt: to their magnificent fleets of large steamers trading all over our enormous extent of seaboard on both the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans and on the Great Lakes, aggregating nearly seven million gross tons, on routes many of which extend to several thousands of miles, and which alone rank this country as easily the second maritime nation of the world. They have also as persistently asserted that had the United States Congress assiduously addressed itself to the undertaking, a solution of the problem would have been evolved long ago; and, moreover, that not the least of the handicaps which have strangled their efforts have been those imposed upon them by governmental action or the lack of such governmental support as has been given by both Germany and Great Britain to their merchant marine.--Scientific American, 7/14. MARINE Tonnage Statistics: Most notable changes in the statistics of tonnage owned in the various maritime countries since the war, as published in the new 1915-16 Lloyd's Register Book are as follows: 1. 110-R/11110 Statistics for the Nation.--By John Hays Hammond, Jr. Those of us who are watching the great world conflict are forced to the conclusion that the individuality and the rights of a nation exist only when backed by national preparedness. The class of people who disavow this are one with the ostrich which buries its head in the sand. It would be a matter of years, not months, before...
