Excerpt from Mississippi Law Journal, Vol. 13: May, 1941 The other ground of decision is doubtful. This was that the trial judge abused his discretion through error of law, in that he believed, as he said to the jury in answer to a request for special instruction, that nothing that you do here would bind the motorman, because he is not a party to the suit. The South Carolina Supreme Court said that the judgment against the corporation would have affected the motor man in a possible action for his liability over. It is difficult to understand how he could have. Been affected by the judgment, when direct protection of him by the ss Act was considered; and at the same time protected by the Act, when detriment to the corporation was considered as set forth above. Reviews

Thorough guideline! Its this type of good read. It is really simplistic but shocks from the 50 percent from the publication. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
