Einsteins theory of General Relativity, published in 1915, sparked the search for a unified field theory combining electromagnetism and gravity. This scientific endeavor has intensified greatly in recent years, with mathematicians and theoretical physicists all over the world racing to combine quantum mechanics and relativity into a single Theory of Everything. When Dale Adams, a business student in Atlanta, stumbles across the key to solving this mystery, he doesnt realize the magnitude of the breakthrough. Instead, he uses his discovery of a new principle of physics like a cheap parlor trick by creating a floating toy. But when he pitches his ZG Boarda Zero Gravity hoverboard before investors as part of a class project, there are those in the room who immediately recognize the true potential of this new technology. As powerful forces vie to get their hands on Dales discovery, Dales life quickly descends into a nightmare of violence and intrigue. Instead of savoring the last weeks of college and coasting toward graduation, Dale finds himself running for his life. It was just a hoverboard. Nobody was supposed to die. A serendipitous discovery, a hoverboard, greedy suits, violent skinheads, and a beautiful girl what more could you want This item ships from multiple locations.
