The numerous letters which appeared in The Times and Standard, together with the more elaborate arguments brought forward in the columns of several scientific journals, attracted the attention of my esteemed friend and teacher, Baron von Liebig. A very interesting correspondence ensued, discussing minutely the various questions at issue. Among other valuable results, I may incidentally mention the final repudiation by Liebig of the untenable assumption that his own extractum carnis was of a food value bearing any close relation to the nutriment contained in the whole bulk of meat from which it had been extracted.
