Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1873 edition. Excerpt: .Its circuit, or its utmost line. While ages have been passing by, The seasons and the storms it braves; Stands free beneath the azure sky, Can reach the clouds, and ride the waves. Tis not for show or empty sound, But for protection and for shade: On earth its equal is not found, And yet by human hands tis made. Among the creeping worms of earth Is one, but not of this world s birth; For speed, and for the wrath it bears, No other creeping thing compares. I am not at all sure that this enigma will be found very easy of solution. I am not quite satisfied as to the answer myself. I have, however, rendered Schiller s original almost literally, and with a very likely guess, in my own mind, as to its meaning. The difficulty is in the last line. If I may be allowed to offer a clue, I would say the answer would be the same as that to No. III., though taking another phase (the external or human aspect) of what is there referred to. H With fiendish voice of angry sound, It seeks its prey with one fell bound; Both horse and rider he destroys, With malice dread, and hellish noise. Worm though it be, it seeks the air; Nor locks, nor bolts, protection are: Armour attracts its daring will, The strong man armed he seeketh still. Like thinnest blades of tender grass, He breaks the...
