MUSAPAEDIA, OR MISCELLANY POEMS, NEVER BEFORE PRINTED. BY SEVERAL MEMBERS OF THE OXFORD POETICAL CLUB, LATE OF ETON AND WESTMINSTERDOWNLOAD

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 68 pages. Original publisher: Washington, DC : Licensing Programs Division, Office of Commercial Space Transportation, U. S. Dept. of Transportation, 1993. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)74752766 Subject: Space industrialization -- Standards. Excerpt: . . . Increasingly, the focus of standardization activity is at the international level. As the volume and complexity of world trade grows, the importance of harmonized product standards--and the cost of unharmonized standards--also grows. Firms manufacturing products for sale internationally face the daunting task of designing their product to meet all applicable, and often conflicting, national standards for each intended market. The result is higher product costs and reduced competitiveness. National standards, whether set voluntarily by industry or by governments, can be a powerful form of non-tariff barrier. By contrast, uniform or harmonized national standards provide a level playing field for domestic and imported products, allowing all firms to compete on the basis of product performance. The potential role of national standards in affecting the flow of international trade is recognized in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which has as one of its components the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade (also known as the Standards Code). This code established the first international requirements concerning the procedures used in developing and implementing standards. Harmonization of standards has been an important aspect of the EC 92 European integration process as well as the growing North-South trade dialogue. In Europe, for example, a goal of harmonizing approximately 10, 000 standards has been set, with the objective of significantly reducing product manufacturing costs. Standardization negotiations have been intensive, with each country jockeying to have their own national standard adopted as the EC standard. The acceleration of international standardization activities has been parti...
