Freud And His Long Journey Into Death

By Lucio Roberto Marzagao

KBR. Paperback. Condition: New. 124 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.3in. Freud is dying. Memories, ideas, scenes from his long life are passing through his mind. The physical pain is unbearable. As agreed to years before, Dr. Max Schur has administered a lethal injection of morphine. To tell his story, the author employs a great variety of resources: He alternates internal monologue with letters to Martha or Princess Marie Bonaparte; there are reminiscences of the family employee, Paula Fichtl, interviews given to an English journalist, dialogues with Dr. Schur and with Anna Freud affectionately called Annerland so forth. Lucidity and humor, which Freud had in abundance, glitter on each page, though mixed with a certain pessimism and resignation. Illustrated with original photos. Foreword by Renato Mezan. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg,OR, La Vergne,TN. Paperback.
