The Princeton Review, Vol. 35: July, 1863 (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By Unknown Author

Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Princeton Review, Vol. 35: July, 1863 Now in order that the believer might be fully qualified, in and of himself, to maintain the perfect kind of prayer which shall be a uniform condition of progress in the work of God, he would need -to know perfectly the nature and measure of his own sin, and all the best means of removing it by the appointed degrees, in all the circumstances of his life. He must also know the exact nature and all the varying phases of all the evil in the world; and the best way of overcoming it, by a course of moral discipline with nations and with individuals, that will reveal the manifold wisdom of God. In other words, he must have an exact and ever-present knowledge of the plan of God in detail, and of the stages of its execution; and thus be able to anticipate in prayer each step in the course of providence by which that part of the redeeming work is to be accomplished. This knowledge man does not possess by nature,...
