This is a revised and enhanced version of Thesila Prophecy The Beginning, but with the subtitle changed to: The Journey Home. Five strangers leading dissatisfied lives on Earth wake up in a magical cave that provides everything needed to survive. For some it's a dream, others a nightmare and they want to wake up. Mashaun finds Dalistra, an egotistical bow that requires him to pass a deadly test, to see if he is worthy of her. After defeating a group of slavers and releasing two young slave girls, they realize the cave is a trap. The cave is not safe, and answers about the way home are somewhere in a strange and mysterious land. The group becomes employees of a caravan returning to the capital and help fend off several attacks by brigands. Mai the medical student proves her worth as a healer. Kazimir a retired fighter is lethal with a sword and shield. Abigail the youngest praises the group's travels in song and prose. A squad of local knights joins the merchant, updating him about the events in the city. Magdalenia, the most feared wizard in the capital is on a rampage. She recently lost her two prized slaves along with a clone and her ancient moon staff. Mashaun wins the freedom of the two slaves in a court of law. Magdalenia realizes that he is responsible for her missing staff and the death of her clone. The group hides from her in a secluded village during the winter. A rumor spreads across the land that the ancient Princess Dalistra has returned and the Thesila Prophecy has begun. Magdalenia has been working against the prophecy and wants Dalistra found. When...
