Outskirts Press, United States, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .FBI Special Agent Kellen Roberts is assigned to assist local law enforcement officials following the assassination of Minneapolis Mayor Jack Sorenson, who was killed with a single gun-shot two weeks after winning a bitter and contentious re-election that left the city almost evenly divided and exhausted from charges of corruption, greed, fraud, and racism leveled by the candidates against one another. Sorenson s opponent in the general election, Linda Green, an African-American community activist from the city s economically depressed north side, with her strong name recognition, scores of volunteers, and established political organization, is poised to win the special election to become mayor. Green s accession is what Ford Madison planned when he organized Jack Sorenson s murder Through the discovery of a pair of secrets about Linda Green, Ford Madison needed her to win the special election in order to maximize the potential of the information he possesses. Enlisting the help of long-time friend, Carrie Charles, an Oglala Sioux resident from the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation of South Dakota, who has grown increasingly lonely, angry, and despondent since the preventable death of her brother, U.S. Army veteran Myron Charles, Ford created a vacancy that would likely be filled by Green. As the investigation into Mayor Sorenson s assassination grows, clues lead Agent Roberts to Wounded Knee, South Dakota, the site of an 1890 Indian Massacre and a 1973 occupation by the American Indian Movement, where, as a newly commissioned FBI agent, Roberts was assigned to enforce the government s position against the insurgents. Roberts return to the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, his first visit since 1973, forces him to confront the consequences of his actions during the seventy-one day standoff...
