In the Pittsburgh district, there is considerable activity owing to the fact that consumers in adjacent territories who formerly obtained their requirements from nearby stacks have entered the Valley market for steel making grades for delivery after January 1, 1916. From Buffalo the report comes that this market shows evidence of increasing strength with firmer prices. Steel making iron is being held there at $16.00 to $16.50. There are some signs of increasing activity in this market on the part of stove manufacturers. In the Birmingham market, there has been very little change with a fair inquiry and prices stationary. The Matthew Addy Company s Market Report, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 24, 1915: After the eager iron buying of the past two months it would be natural to have a lull. But it has not yet come. Prices have been forced up on Alabama spot iron from $9.00 to $12.00; and on Ohio spot iron from $12.50 to $14.50. Successive advances from the very low quotations that ruled July 1st have been asked by the iron masters with fear and trembling. They had so long been accustomed to play the celebrated role of pauper that they were very humble in regard to trying to get more money. There are two notable things about this market. First, had there been any such wholesale buying as we have just had, and are still having, prior to the 190/panic, the market...
