Nor all that heralds rake from coffined clay, Nor florid prose, nor honied lies of rhyme, Can blazen evil deeds, or consecrate a crime. Again, in his Twentieth Stanza, characterising Honorius, he well observes-- Deep in yon cave Honorius long did dwell, In hope to merit heaven, by making earth a hell. False views of the character of God among the pretended friends of religion, have done more injury to the cause, than all the shafts of infidelity. In Stanza XXII. he confessed-- That awhile he learned to moralize, For meditation fixed at times on him, And conscious reason whispered to despise His early youth, mispent in maddest whim. Why had he not then listened to the secret monitor? Then, as he gazed on truth, his aching eyes had not grown dim. In his Forty-fourth Stanza, how just and how beautiful his reflections on war....
