Excerpt from The Voice of China: Speeches of Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek Between December 7, 1941, and October 10, 1943; Including Some Recent Messages to British Leaders and the British People As one reads these pages, the feeling grows that in the Generalissimo one finds perhaps a synthesis of the old-and new China. His frequent references to Confucian classics and to time-honoured ethical ideas, so deeply rooted in Chinese life, and so much in evidence also in the writings of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, place him firmly in the tradition of the scholar-soldier-reformer. None the less, one is aware at the same time of that quality of fearlessness and positive vigour which characterizes all great revolutionary leaders. I am happy to find included in this collection also some important speeches by Madame Chiang. The breadth of vision which they reveal recalls to mind the saying of Socrates I am a citizen of the World. Her words will undoubtedly find a response in the hearts of women the world over.
