Similarly, the majority of the respondents to the second survey indicated cost savings as a reason for adopting sustainable 7 business practices. The majority of firms responding to the first survey also indicated that their founding traditions and core organizational values of their companies dictate their commitment to corporate citizenship. Similarly, the second survey reported that the majority of responding firms indicated the CEO Board commitment as a contributing reason for their sustainable business practices. Further, this survey reported that a number of respondents stated that one reason for adopting sustainable practices was because it was the right thing to do. Despite over 30 years of research, no consensus has been reached on the relationship between business social and financial performance. Numerous empirical research studies have attempted to determine whether those firms that engage in socially responsible practices also do well in terms of financial performance. A 1997 study that surveyed 25 years of research observes that, many studies find a negative relationship between these practices and financial performance, although the largest..
