By Deborah Godwin-Starks

AuthorHouse. Paperback. Condition: New. 144 pages. Dimensions: 7.9in. x 5.0in. x 0.4in. On that day, I surrendered my life to Christ. As the tears flowed down my cheeks, all the pain, all the hurt, all of the pinned up anger, and all of the frustration was swept away. My heart that had been burdened was lifted, my head that was bowed so low was raised, and my soul that was enslaved was set free. . . . Drinking the Living Water: A View from the Edge, is a commanding spiritual autobiography in which Godwin-Starks is taught life's lessons on forgiveness, health and healing, and eventual wholeness through trials and tribulations. She writes honestly about her childhood growing up in Alabama, her failed marriage, at age twenty, and the move that would take her six hundred miles away from her family. In her deepest moment of depression having lost her brother and two aunts, she seeks God out of desperation. What she found was that he was always with her. However, he was waiting to be invited into her heart. As you get a glimpse a first taste into her spiritual autobiography you will be amazed, enlightened, and thrilled at her honesty and...
