Excerpt: .ARTS, and I want to congratulate you and Bates. In your subtitle you have crystallized the expression of a movement that is, I believe, to be a most valuable one to the business interests of our country The advertising fraternity is endeavoring, with constantly increasing effectiveness, to reach a better understanding of, and cooperation with, the master craftsmen upon whom they must depend for the physical expression of their work, and a similar effort on the part of printers is equally noticeable. In devoting THE GRAPHIC Airts to the development of this movement you are filling a distinct field that is not adequately covered by any other publications.--O. P. HATTON, F.
