Indian hemp, bananas, etc.; and many plants introduced from Europe and the East thrive admirably. Among these are coffee of very fine quality, cinchona, sugar cane, oranges and lemons, and nearly all vegetables of the temperate climates. The seasons are the wet and the dry. The rains begin in October, then break till January, and fall heavily till April, when they begin to cease; and the dry season lasts from May to September. The Machinga are a branch of the extensive Yao family. Physically they are tall and well made, and they are inclined to haughtiness in disposition, especially where they are under the influence of the black traders. The villages of these people consist of from five or six to thirty houses, rarely more, though the chiefs village at Domasi numbers over a hundred: and the...

Reviews

The best book i actually go through. It can be full of wisdom and knowledge Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

-- Prof. Greg Herzog

Great electronic book and valuable one. It really is simplistic but surprises within the fifty percent from the book. Its been printed in an extremely simple way in fact it is merely right after i finished reading this publication by which in fact modified me, change the way i really believe.

-- Dr. Bethany Lindgren
