By Anna Minton

Penguin Books Ltd, United Kingdom, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. In Ground Control Anna Minton reveals the untested - and unwanted - urban planning that is changing not only our cities, but the nature of public space, of citizenship and of trust. Britain s streets have been transformed by the construction of new property - but it s owned by private corporations, designed for profit and watched over by CCTV. Have these gleaming business districts, mega malls and gated developments led to regeneration , or have they intensified social divisions and made us more fearful of each other? Now with a new chapter on the 2012 London Olympic legacy and Britain s housing collapse, Anna Minton s acclaimed and passionate polemic shows us the face of Britain today. They sold our streets and nobody noticed . timely and powerful . revelatory Observer A sustained, informed, articulate, timely work of rage . Anna Minton has put her finger on one of the most profound and disturbing shifts in modern British cities Evening Standard A damning study of how Britain is curbing freedoms . Minton is a brilliant journalist . a vital book Daily Telegraph Eye-opening, unsettling...
