Excerpt from Tempered Steel: A Romance A sunny lad in tunic of blue that some one must have chosen to match his eyes came tiptoeing to the shore This is where the voles live, Odo. Maybe we ll see one. Voles N aught but water-rats! What do I care for them The taller boy stepped forward noisily, rolling back his red sleeves. But this is a good place to sail our boats, for there s no wind here to drive them out of reach. The blue-eyed lad watched the lone swan glide away. I always sail my boats in the pool beyond the willows, where I can wade beside them. Mother says tis too deep here in the moat. Aylmar s afraid, afraid of being drowned chanted Odo, setting his boat in the water and pushing it along with a stick. Aylmar ?ushed. He was fair-skinned, and the summer sun had brought freckles but scarce a touch of tan, so the ?ush was plain to see. He looked down into the dusky water. If one was drowned one would lie there at the...

Reviews

Complete guideline for publication fans. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
