Excerpt from A Letter to the Honourable Charles Sumner Upon His Speech Delivered on the Alabama Claims Convention Your speech on the Alabama Claims Convention has caused much anxiety to good men in this country. They fear that it implies a settled policy to keep open a controversy with England, and perhaps at some future day to pave the way for a rupture. Permit me, as one who knows America and values its. Friendship, to address a few words to you on the line of argument you have taken on this disputed question. I am emboldened to do so because the closing portion of your speech testifies to a desire for peace and amity with England, and because I cannot think that a man of your vast political experience and earnestness of purpose can wilfully widen the breach that already exists between the two nations. I will not attempt to go into a nice disquisition on international law enough has already been written on that score, and the public mind in both countries has been confused rather than enlightened by the wearisome subtleties of lawyers. What I wish to do is to convey to you briefly what is the practical view of the subject taken here by upright men who are anxious to act justly, and would willingly make any reasonable concession to America sooner than have a rankling sore disturbing the harmony between the two countries.
