THE BLACK AND RED MARCH 1911, VOL. 2 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Black and Red March 1911, Vol. 2 A Montreal paper speaks of him in the following terms: It was never intended that students should become Rhodes Scholars on account of their attainments in the class-list alone. The idea is that they shall be all-round men. Walter J. Pearse brings credit to McGill in all the required Rhodes qualifications, but in the enthusiasm of the moment, and amid the showers of congratulations, his thoughts go back to the School where his final preparation was made for the University, and he is anxious that the University School of Victoria, B.C., should have credit for the signal honour done him. With the $1,500 a year which the Rhodes Scholarship provides for each student sent to Oxford, Pearse will proceed to the Old Country in September next, and since he has never been across the Atlantic before, he is looking forward to the experience with the greatest interest. Oxford will thus be seen to be getting a fine type of young Canadian, who fills to a nicety the intention that was in the mind of the late Cecil Rhodes, when these scholarships were first thought of by him, and provision made for their tenure. His own periodical, the McGill Martlet, writes of him in a humorous vein under the heading, Our Little Tin Gods. After declaring that the number of chairs he has taken during his Varsity career would enable him to run a second-hand store, and describing him as being as modest as an oyster with a cold in its head, the article ends - And so we leave him sharing with the scholarship our heartiest congratulations for having secured each other....
