ARE THESE THE LESSONS He knows the struggle of your life, The failing of your will In everything thats right and good, And all its strength in ill. And you will find these words come true: That those who long to mend, And try, but cannot mend themselves, And know it, God will mend. Thought! in Verse. Far too angry to feel any sorrow for her conduct, Edith walked up and down her room, sometimes stopping for a moment to stamp her foot impatiently. Then, as the short afternoon closed in, and the darkness stole over everything, she threw herself down beside her bed and buried her face in it. Papa! papa! she cried, and the tears which had not come before flowed freely now. Oh! I want you, she sobbed; come back to me, papa! every one else is so unkind, I hate them all. If I only had you! I cannot stay here--I am so miserable! I never was so unhappy before! And then somehow Ediths thoughts went back to that evening when her father had given her Bible to her, and the talk they had together. How was the life-work going on Alas! it had failed altogether! And by degrees the anger faded out of Ediths heart, and she began only to think sorrowfully. of the lessons which her father had wished her to learn, and which she had forgotten so completely. Oh! they are so hard, so hard!...
