Shaker Verlag Mai 2012, 2012. Buch. Book Condition: Neu. 211x152x10 mm. Neuware - In everyday engineering practice the problem of predicting the vibrational behavior of acoustical systems often occurs. Knowing the physical behavior of the systems is a prerequisite for providing a noise control and acoustic design. Numerous methods are used in vibroacoustics for prediction of vibrations and induced sound fields. The choice of the appropriate method is influenced by the characteristics of the system and the frequency range of interest. In this research the Finite Element Method is used for the room acoustical simulations. Numerical methods are convenient for detailed description of complex geometries and provide results with a spatial resolution of the sound field. They allow the calculation of the deterministic response of the system for deterministic load and defined model parameters. For higher frequencies, the reliability of this method might be significantly reduced due to discretization and also by the influence of small parameter variances. Moreover, numerical models for higher frequencies require a very fine discretization which leads to extensive calculations. In the scope of this work the calculation effort in room acoustical simulations at Low Frequencies is reduced with the help of a model reduction method...
