Excerpt from On the Government of the Territories: The Constitutional Power of the General Government and the People in the Federal Territories Another claim for this power of intervention has been set up through the medium of the Judicial Tribunals. It is said that the Supreme Court, in the Dred Scott case, having declared slaves to be property, (a proposition never denied by a lawyer, ) the Constitution protects property in the Territories. Grant it; but the Constitution does not create property, nor determine what property is. Nor does the Constitution extend more protection to property in the Territories than in the States. If, then, the right of property enables, by virtue of the Constitution, a master to carry his slave into a Territory and be protected against the local law, it equally enables him to carry such slave into a State, and be protected there against the local Constitution or laws of the State; for the Federal Constitution is the Supreme law of the land, and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws...
