In cranes of heavy construction it is common to have two chains winding at once, one from each end of the barrel. This means a double spiral, right and left-handed (Fig. 227), and, of course, two guiding-screws, one cut to a right-hand, the other in a lefthand direction. The grooved board also will be only half the length of the other, and will strike the two screws distinct. 1 1 Fig. 227. !! Thus, say the screw commencing at the centre of the barrel and running upwards is right-handed, while the other running downwards is left-handed. The grooved board will be screwed on first for the top screw, and the right-hand guiding-screw put in the bottom. When it is struck, the grooved board will be removed to the bottom, and the left-hand guiding-screw put in. The bottom screw is struck last to prevent its receiving damage from the tumbling down of loam from above. The making of the lugs, or recesses, as the case may be, for the attachment of the chain or chains is too simple a matter to call for comment, and the making of flanges and boards, top and bottom joints, has already been described.
