Reviews

Complete guideline for publication fans. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

TOWARDS IN-VIVO MONITORING OF KNEE IMPLANT FUNCTION

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Instrumented knee implants | Nowadays, most, if not all, of instrumented knee implants developed to measure the in-vivo forces and moments acting on knee joint during daily life activities were used to improve the implant design, refine the surgical instrumentation, select the optimal postoperative physiotherapy, and determine the activities that may excessively overload the implant. In other words, the in-vivo monitoring of knee forces and moments has never been used for the early detection and diagnosis of postoperative complications. Furthermore, these implants were not autonomous and powered either by miniature rechargeable battery or by wireless power transfer. The main purpose of this research work is to design, develop, and test a prototype of self-powered diagnostic knee implant that can accurately measure the mediolateral and anteroposterior distribution of tibiofemoral force during walking. Force distribution data collected by such an implant can be used for the early diagnosis of implant wear and instability. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 236 pp.
