He desires Himself to be understood to be God, but God in the sense of the Son of God, not of God the Father Himself. This is the point of the term He uses of Himself-- sent --and of His declaration that He had showed many works from the Father. 2 Evidently He desired Himself to be understood to be not the Father, but the Son. Again, in the last part of His defence He made mentiorTof the Son, not of the Father: Say ye, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God? Thus in dealing with the charge of blasphemy, He says that He is the Son, not the Father, but so far as He was concerned with His Own Divinity, by the statement that I and the Father are one, He proved that He...
