CLASSIC VERSE FOR A MODERN WORLD: SONNETS, ODES AND OTHER POEM (PAPERBACK)

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Francesco Petrarca, who created the form we now call the Italian sonnet, wrote three hundred and sixty-six poems in tribute to a woman named Laura whom he loved, but with whom he never consummated a relationship. Not once, in any of these poems did he even suggest the idea that they should, at the very least, try sexting. William Shakespeare, The Bard of Avon, wrote one hundred and fifty-four sonnets. Somehow, in spite of the fact that Sweet William lived only a few hours from Liverpool, he never mentioned the Beatles or John Lennon in a single one. Both these sonneteers, as well as countless others from Elizabeth Barrett Browning to Edmund Spenser have one thing in common. They all died too soon to write sonnets which represent our modern age. Fortunately, this void has been filled. In this volume, you can read sonnets about things they would have written about if they were here today.
